Location: TBD
Schedule: In-class, January 9-13, 9am-5pm

Course Description:

Christian theology is the purposeful reflection upon God and God's world. Our beliefs about who God is (or is not) are bound to the way we live and who we live among. Theology shapes us as we struggle to discern the meaning of our lives in relationship to God, to one another, and to creation itself. This course serves as a starting point in exploring the questions, approaches and themes of systematic and constructive theologies.

By systematic I mean there is an interrelationship between the beliefs and doctrines that shape Christian faith. Sometimes these doctrines are explicit and sometimes they are implicit. But our faith and lives as disciples are animated by how we describe who God is, what we believe creation to be, what are human beings, what has gone wrong in our world and what does God do to "save" or "heal" or "restore" or "judge." Depending on the phrase we associate with salvation we already see implicit assumptions about who God is and what's gone wrong. Systematic theology is the process of thinking about these interrelationships with respect to who we believe God to be, and who we believe our ourselves to be.

By constructive I mean that theology is not simply a process of describing what others have said, the systems that some traditions or denominations or believers have articulated over time. While there are many ways of describing constructive theology, my invocation of this term implies that theology is a creative and co-creative process. Theology is a way of being and a way of describing that draws from the descriptions, problems, formulas, and performances of theology that precede, but also speaks from its moment. In this speaking, we draw from the artists, theories, sciences, and histories that help us to describe our moment more faithfully and then discern what it might mean to say that God is acting and present in our moment.

And by theologies I mean that descriptions of God working in this world are always multiple. Sometimes they intersect, sometimes they are in conversation, and sometimes they are in opposition. If we confess that our God is transcendent, that God is one who cannot be known or captured within our language or knowledge or experience, then we might begin to open ourselves to all of these descriptions as offering us an insight into who God is. And yet we are also confronted by a God who brings a people into being, who is called by a name, who has a particularity, a personhood. How do we begin to discern who God is in the midst of this transcendence and personhood?

Throughout this course we will examine theology through many of the central doctrines of Christian confession (God, creation, humanity, the fall, Christology, etc.), attending to various treatments (or lack of treatment) of these doctrines, and the historical development of early creeds and confessions.

In addition to comparing theological claims and descriptions we will also endeavor to construct or speak of God and God's world in light of these descriptions, asking how our theological work might contribute to drawing people into a deeper sense of God in their midst.

Learning Objectives

- Identify differences in theological starting points and methods.
- Examine differences and similarities in various theological systems/descriptions.
- Identify interrelationships between doctrinal claims within theological systems.
- Understand theological ideas as having a history and examining several examples, particularly regarding Christology.
- Draw upon theological descriptions to articulate an emerging constructive/systematic theology

Accommodations

- Garrett-Evangelical is committed to providing a quality theological education and will provide reasonable accommodations for documented conditions. Students requiring specific assistance such as classroom changes, alternative ways of note-taking, different classroom procedures, or alternative testing formats are urged to request the appropriate accommodations from the director of academic studies/registrar. The director of academic studies/registrar can advise students on other support services and resources, for example, diagnostic testing. Students must complete a request for accommodations using the form available from the director of academic studies/registrar or through myGETS documenting their condition(s) through appropriate verification methods.

Readings:

Required:

- Brian Bantum. The Death of Race: Building a New Christianity in a Racial World. Minneapolis: Fortress Press, 2016. [isbn: 978-1506408880, Fortress, $16.99]
- Dorothy Soelle. Thinking About God: An Introduction to Theology. Eugene, OR: Wipf and Stock, 2015 [isbn: 978-1498295765, Amazon, $18.59]
- Kallistos Ware. The Orthodox Way. Yonkers, NY: St. Vladimir's Press, 2018 [isbn: 978-0881416299, Amazon, $18.00]
- Mercy Oduoye. Introducing African Women's Theology (selections available on Moodle)

Assignments:

Assignments will be a combination of in-class exercises and projects. Students will complete a rough draft of the final project during the week and submit a final project by the end of the following week. More information will be provided in the week prior to class.

Pre-Reading:

Read Mercy Oduoye's Introducing African Women's Theology and Kallistos Ware's The Orthodox Way. There is no pre-class writing assignment, but I would like you to note similarities and differences you notice in each theologian. You might also consider who you resonated with more and why. We will look more closely at specific passages from each theologian throughout the week, but it will be helpful for you to have read each text in its entirety prior to class.

Class Schedule:

Each day we will meet from 9am to 5 pm with several small breaks and a longer break for lunch. Class time will include periods of lecture, small groups, individual reading, quizzes, and individual/group exercises.

This is a basic structure of our class time. A more detailed schedule with readings will be posted to Moodle about a week before class.

January 9 – Topics: What is Theology? Who is God?

January 10 – creation, trinity, fall

January 11 – person and work of Jesus

January 12 – atonement, resurrection, church

January 13 – sacraments, baptism, eucharist, eschatology

Create a series of modules that include the materials and assignments

Pre-Work (assignment)

- Due- January 12 by 11pm (upload)
- text for description- *The assigned pre-readings discuss the nature of theology, who is God, and creation. Write a 3-4 page (11-12pt font) reflection. In the reflection consider the differences or similarities in each theologians' approach to theology. What shapes the concerns of each author? How are these concerns reflected in their descriptions of God?
